

AI: Who's Looking After Me?

On display: Cat Royale by Blast Theory / Blast Theory

This fascinating and very topical exhibition takes a questioning and playful look at the ways Artificial Intelligence (AI) is already shaping so many areas of our lives from our healthcare and justice systems to how we look after our pets. Showcased at Science Gallery London, it will be presented in collaboration with FutureEverything and feature 12 artistic collaborations from artists James Bridle, Blast Theory, Air Giants, Wesley Goatley, Mimi Onuoha and more, working alongside King's College researchers, hospital patients and young people in London. Entering the exhibition, visitors will first encounter Sprout, an inflatable, huggable robot that responds to human behaviour using AI.

Science Gallery, to January 20, 2024 sciencegallery.com